

Resource

Get involved in research

NRAS is committed to improving a broad range of outcomes for the RA community.

In achieving these aims we work on a number of separate but entwined strategies covering issues such as policy reform, the develop of self-management resources, providing support and help to people experiencing health, social and psychological issues related to their RA.

Print

An additional aim is to improve the quality of treatment, including supporting the development of new medical therapies that improve the quality of life for people living with RA and JIA.

We achieve this by connecting research organisations with people living with RA who wish to actively participate in surveys and research.

If you would like more information on research or would like to sign up to be an active participant, click below.

To understand research further, please see our ‘Research Explained’ article.

[Submit your interest
Article](#)

Clinical trials

uestions about new therapies, or diagnostic procedures, or

Article

Research opportunities

Typically these research opportunities aim to find out peoples opinion and what happens to people in different situations.

Article

Focus groups

We have a number of focus groups coming up soon! Watch this space. If you would like to express your interest in advance, click below.

Article

Other ways to get involved in research

Get involved in other research by becoming part of patient registries or finding trials on trial platforms.

This article was downloaded from www.nras.org.uk. National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society (NRAS) is a registered charity in England and Wales (1134859) and Scotland (SC039721). A private company limited by guarantee. Registered in England and Wales (7127101).