

Resource

Download an app for your RA

NRAS has been working in partnership with other organisations to help develop and improve apps to help you to monitor any or all of these aspects of your condition.

Print

Monitoring your RA can help improve outcomes and give you some control over your condition and the ability to self-manage. Monitoring aspects such as blood tests, symptoms, disease activity and medications are all very useful but can be difficult to keep track of. This is why NRAS has been working in partnership with other organisations to help develop and improve apps to help you to monitor any or all of these aspects of your condition.

Article

Rheumabuddy

RheumaBuddy is an app for people with RA and JIA that helps people get a better understanding of what influences the good or the bad days – and with this understanding, increase the number of good days.

This article was downloaded from www.nras.org.uk. National Rheumatoid Arthritis Society (NRAS) is a registered charity in England and Wales (1134859) and Scotland (SC039721). A private company limited by guarantee. Registered in England and Wales (7127101).